The Provisioning Process and Supply Support
Including Obsolescence Management
A Three-day Virtual Presentation
6-8 May 2025

Provisioning is a vital process that ultimately determines the materials that should be available to support maintenance of a system, and to achieve a required operational availability target for a hopefully reasonable cost. This course is a unique offering that is a guided tour through the “nuts and bolts” of the complete provisioning process. It encompasses every aspect of the process from start to finish. The course then continues to address proven obsolescence avoidance, obsolescence mitigation and obsolescence recovery methods to assure that materials required for sustainment will be available for the system life.

This course is the only one of its kind. Information presented it not available elsewhere.

Course Content and Focus:

A detailed presentation encompassing the relationships of technical disciplines within Product Support and how each contributes to the Provisioning process and Supply Support activities. Included in the course are in-depth discussions of reliability, maintainability, testability, reliability centered maintenance and availability and how these areas drive requirements for maintenance. Specific emphasis is placed on the provisioning process starting with requirements for spares and repair parts from Level of Repair Analysis and then moving to processes for determining quantities of spares required to support maintenance. Spares modeling using Poisson Distribution, Readiness Based Sparing and other methods are presented. The development of each individual data element required for generation of provisioning documentation to reflect the results of this process is presented in detail focusing on how data is used to feed the development of authorization documents such as the US Navy’s APLs and COSALs. Each data element required for the LSA-036 report and the AIA/ASD S2000M provisioning messages, or similar CDRL deliverable document, are discussed including its source and interpretation. Alternatives to the LSA-036 are presented that meet current DoD sparing requirements. The course addresses provisioning using AIA/ASD S2000M. The course also discusses how Configuration Management and design changes influence requirements for spares and repair parts, and how standardization and the DMSMS process address obsolescence. At the completion of this course students should have the knowledge necessary to function as a provisioning analyst on a contemporary acquisition program.

A virtual presentation using Microsoft Teams. Class time 0900-1600 EST.
